COLOMBIA'S 2018 ELECTIONS ON TWITTER

Authors: Juan Luis Suárez
Yadira Lizama Mué

Duque has the best machinery in Twitter among candidates.
The political debate is still dominated by Uribe and Santos.

SUMMARY

The analysis of December's tweets shows the campaign has just begun on this platform. The language used by the different actors points toward some of the flags they intend to use to attract voters, but also how they react to the political events of the day. Among the candidates, the figures of Uribe and Santos are still too large to ignore, in numbers of tweets, reactions, and attention they attract. If candidates want to separate themselves from the recent political history and appear in front of the public as credible potential presidents, they will need to establish bolder profiles, create stronger reactions, and elaborate a defined language that sums up their main ideas. So far, only Iván Duque's machinery seems to be doing all these things.

USER'S IMPACT

A user's impact is the number of reactions provoked and the number of users she reaches.

IMPACT

The users who attracted the most attention in December were: Uribe, Santos, Petro, López, Robledo, Duque, Ordóñez, Noticias RCN, BluRadioCo and Ramírez. Vargas Lleras is number 11 and Fajardo makes it to number 13. De la Calle does not show up on the list (figure 1).

BASIC DATA

1,637,643 tweets
149,167 users
8,395 hashtags

Tweets: December 2017

Of these most popular users, Juan Manuel Santos and Alejandro Ordóñez are the most effective, followed by Claudia López and Álvaro Uribe. Effectiveness is the number of reactions divided by the number of tweets a user published. It represents the average reactions a user receives every time she tweets (figure 2).

EFFECTIVENESS ▶

Juan Manuel Santos and Alejandro Ordóñez are the most effective, followed by Álvaro Uribe and Gustavo Petro.

Finally, the most disseminated videos on Twitter were posted by Uribe. He normally uses this medium to publish his messages. The four most-spreaded urls are Uribe’s videos, denouncing the alleged manipulation of the Senate’s negative to approve the curules for the victims. The fifth video on this list is a debate among Centro Democrático’s precandidates.

Colombia (whose presidential candidate is Fajardo). Besides that, the hashtags reveal both candidates are trending; the most common hashtags lead users with similar opinions to form clusters around the candidates (table 1).

USER’S NETWORK

A user’s network is built by putting together the reactions (retweets, quotes and replies) to their tweets.

HASHTAGS

They are used to attract users to a theme of conversations, to form a community around an issue and to try to create trending topics. They show the intentions of users who create them, and attraction to these themes by other users. The most-used hashtags refer to Duque and to Coalición

NETWORKS OF TOP USERS

We show the five strongest relations for each of the top-10 users – that is, the most active users with respect to each of the top users. These users create an echo effect on their leaders. This network also shows the bridges between the leaders (figure 3).

For instance, GusDuque1 links Marta Lucía Ramírez, Santos and Uribe. At the same time, the relationship between Gus-

Table 1. Most popular hashtags

Duque and Uribe is the strongest in the whole network (733 reactions). Ersen5656 links up Uribe and Iván Duque because this user reacts to both Centro Democrático's leaders. Lindaneva connects Claudia López and Uribe, whereas roger5co links Ordóñez and Ramírez. Cmarcafederal connects Petro and Robledo, and felipecas pov connects both BluRadio and NoticiasRCN.

Based on this peak in activity, we would say Duque's nomination received a lot of attention and that his well-built network effectively echoes the event.

Besides, there was an increase in activity around the controversy related to the approval/rejection of the 16 seats for victims in Congress included in the Peace Agreement and denied by the President of Senate after the vote on November 30. The following day, December 1, collects the effects of that decision, with a total of 97,604 tweets.

LANGUAGE

The top-10 messages in terms of reactions were published by politicians and media. In this list (table 2), we find tweets by President Santos arguing in favor of the approval of the 16 seats for victims of war in Congress (top message) and expressing his commitment to the victims; by Noticias RCN on the lowering of Colombia's credit rating; and by Claudia López on her reconciliation with Sergio Fajardo after the coalition's difficulties at the beginning of the month.

BETTER CONNECTED USERS

This is the network of the 200 users with the highest betweenness centrality of the whole network. The higher the betweenness centrality, the more influential these users are in the network (figure 4).

EVENTS OF THE MONTH

December 10 to 12 were the most active days in Twitter, with a combined total of 318,472 tweets. This period coincides with Centro Democrático's decision to nominate Duque as its presidential candidate. To reach this decision, the party conducted a series of polls to identify the pre-candidate with the highest support among party members and the public in general.

OUTSTANDING TWITTER ACTIVITY

318,472 tweets were posted from December 10 to 12.

In December's analysis, we noticed Iván Duque's strong presence of on the platform. He has been able to dominate the use of hashtags thanks to polls conducted to select the candidate for Centro Democrático. Duque also entered the list of high-impact users, along with Uribe, Santos, the media and some other politicians with long histories on Twitter. It's a very promising start, although he needs to improve his effectiveness by increasing the average number of reactions per tweet.
