What Changed?

Presentation by Brown University at the Innovative Users Group on their digital bookplate program

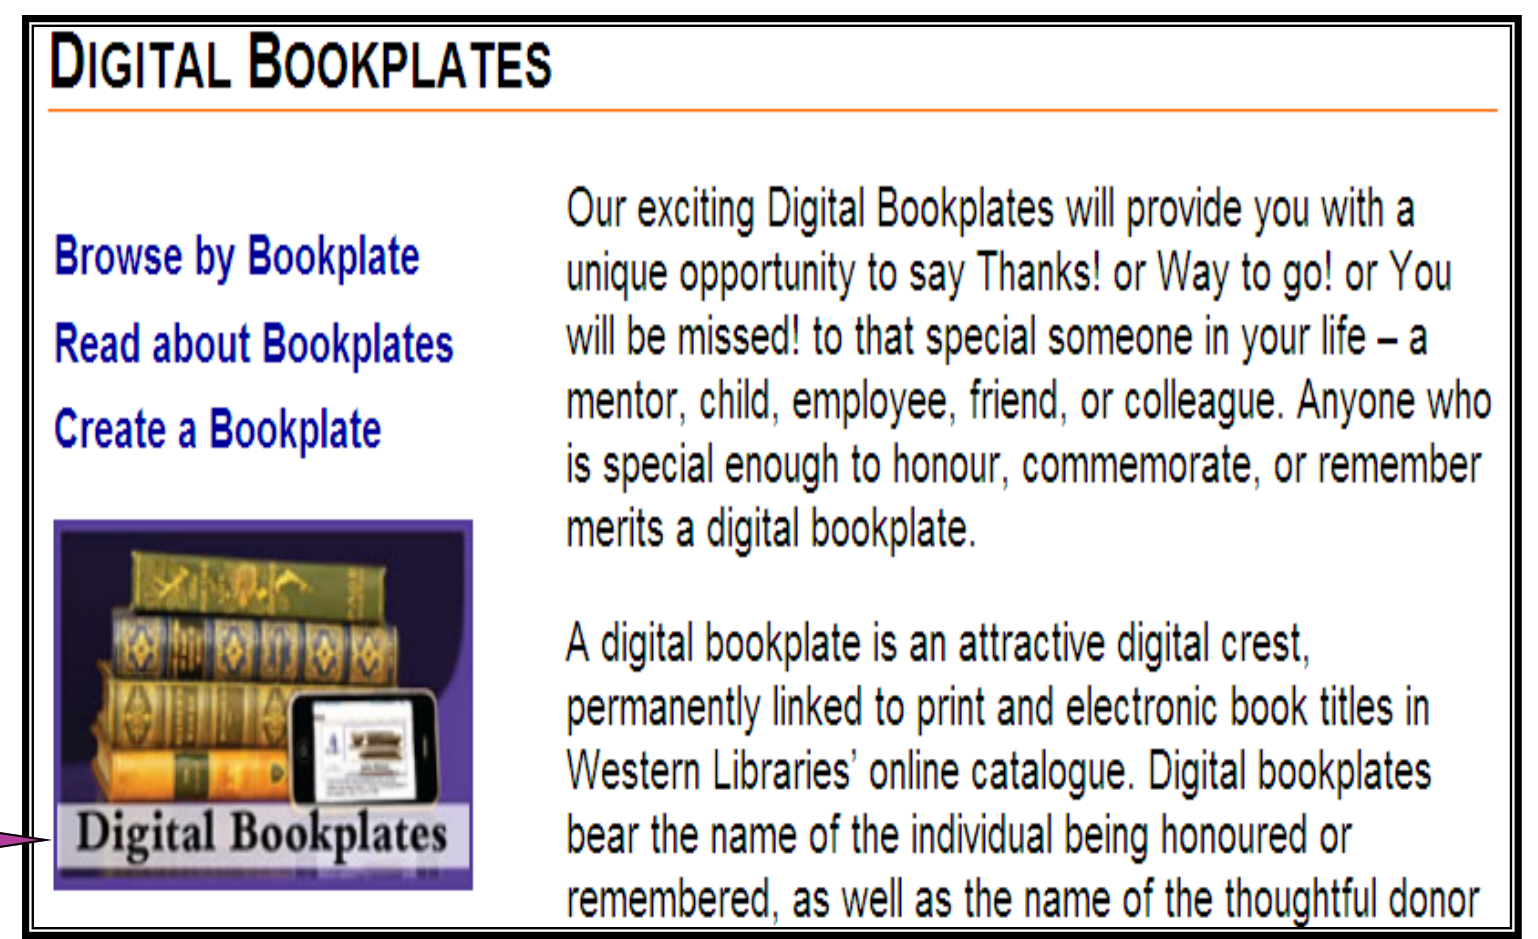

Western Libraries Executive decided that we could use a digital bookplate program as a development tool, and also use it to streamline technical services processes

Who Implemented the Change?

Team of Knowledge Management Librarians, Web Manager, Alumni & Development Officer, Graphics Technician formed to implement the changed process; others added to the team as needed

How Did We Do It?

Public web page for donations, linked from the main library page:

Staff use a form to enter donation information:

The 'EDIT FUND' form contains the following fields and options:

- Fund Name: London Opera Guild donation
- Sort By: London
- Upload New Image: Browse...
- Description: Opera scores and librettos donated by the London Opera Guild.
- Theme: Individual and Corporate Gifts
- Donation Level: Level 2
- Search Phrase: London Opera Guild donation
- Buttons: Save
- Links: Digital Bookplates Administration, Digital Bookplates Public Site, Logout

Macromedia Fireworks used to create bookplates, using a template

Search from web page using donation statement (592 MARC tag):

Search from catalogue record using URL, which links to the public web page for that donation:

The Shared Library Catalogue record for 'Medea in Corinto' includes the following information:

Development/Fundraising

Four levels of donation, tied to bookplate designs

Bookplates can be used for gifts-in-kind, endowments, and donations to the bookplate program.

What's Next?

Expand the bookplate program to other donors (parents can honour graduates, use to attract more high-level donors, etc.)

Research the cost-effectiveness of the bookplate program, and document the increase in donations to the library

Recycle filing cabinets full of paper bookplates
