Innovate Guidelines Application

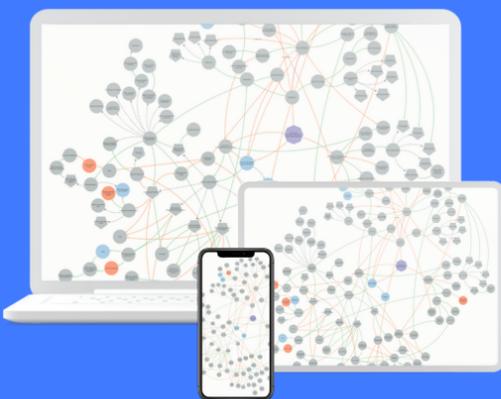

Our Deliverables

Preface Link

Our final deliverables include a Systems Map, White Paper, and Recommendation Brief. The Systems Map and Recommendation Brief are for an audience of researchers at UHN OpenLab, while the White Paper could be for a broader industry audience. Using OpenLab's mission of providing evidence-informed solutions for healthcare problems, our work was heavily based in researching barriers to implementing the Innovate Guidelines Application. The goal of our deliverables is to provide a broad analysis of these complex barriers and identify some leverage points for potential solutions so that the OpenLab group can resume progress towards developing the application. This app has great potential to improve healthcare delivery in cities like London, increasing efficiency of clinical decision-making and therefore access to physician services.

Systems Map

Systems Map Link

Our systems map branches off into 3 main regions based on problems with guidelines, stakeholders, and app development. After our initial research, we laid out the primary issues with implementation of the Innovate Guidelines Application. For each node, we asked ourselves why this issue exists and continued an iterative process of researching and mapping. Arrows between nodes are color-coded according to the Cynefin Framework, identifying simple, complicated, and complex problems. Simple problems are more likely to have a solution than complex problems, so we attempted to break issues down into simple problems wherever possible. Readers can hover over any node to see its connected nodes put into focus for improved clarity.

White Paper

A white paper was drafted to complement the systems map, explain the problem clearly, and highlight areas that could be further explored.

Recommendation Brief

The recommendation brief outlines where further action could be taken.
